

$20,000 FIRE LOSS AT PORT EWEN

starting in Shirt Factory. Flames Destroy New Garage Building of Merritt Every as Well as His House and McKenzie Garage—Firemen Did Well Under Handicap.

A disastrous fire which originated in the shirt factory conducted by Edward McGue of this city on the second floor of the new garage building owned by Merritt Every at Port Ewen completely destroyed the garage and factory, the adjoining residence of Mr. Every and the garage of Police Justice Henry E. McKenzie about 7 o'clock Monday evening, with a total loss approximating $20,000.

The building in which the fire originated was erected this year by Mr. Every, who conducted a garage on the lower floor. It was of concrete block and frame construction, two stories in height, with shingle roof, and was 44 by 80 feet in size. The second floor was occupied as a shirt factory which employed about thirty hands, all girls, except Edward McGue, who conducted the business, and his younger brother, James McGue. The newsdealer of No. 45 Broadway, this city, Edward McGue resides at No. 25 Adams street. The output of the factory was taken by W. H. Rose & Company of No. 569 Broadway, New York city, who are believed also to have been financially interested in the enterprise.

Edward McGue spent Christmas in Vermont, returning home Sunday, and was at the factory on Monday. The factory closed about 5:30 o'clock, when the employees left the building, and he left there at about 6:30 o'clock. Neither he nor his brother ever smoked in the factory, he says, and there was nobody else employed there who smoked. At the time he left, he says, there was no indication of fire and everything appeared to be all right. The machinery was operated by electric current, which was also used for lighting. Heat was supplied by a heater which was nearly in the center of the main room, a metal cover at the top operating to radiate the heat. James McGue generally attended to the heater in addition to his duties as shirt cutter.

Several men who were standing in front of the garage about ten minutes past seven o'clock say they heard an explosion on the second floor, and immediately afterward smoke began to come through the ceiling of the garage. A few minutes later, the entire second floor appeared to be in flames. During the fire, according to various residents of the neighborhood who hastened to the scene, there were several other explosions.

The Port Ewen fire department responded promptly but had no water supply and were compelled to rely on their chemical apparatus. Two forty-gallon tanks were emptied on the flames, but without much success. While the fire was raging on the second floor of the building, neighbors removed four automobiles and several barrels of lubricating oil from the garage. The flames and heat prevented the rescue of one car and a quantity of oil and automobile accessories, which were destroyed.

Adjoining the garage was the residence of Mr. Every. The flames from the garage building leaped to the house, from which neighbors succeeded in removing most of the furniture. The house burned rapidly and was completely destroyed.

Adjoining the garage on the opposite side is the law office of Henry E. McKenzie, and also a garage. The latter building was destroyed. The law office was after several times but the flames were extinguished. The contents of the office were damaged somewhat by smoke and water.

On the opposite side of the street several houses were blistered by the heat, and canvas soaked with chemical preparation was hung over them. There was a huge quantity of sparks from the fire which alighted on many nearby roofs but the snow prevented further spread of the flames.

A call for help was sent to the Kingston Fire Department and Deputy Fire Chief Murphy and several men from the Central Fire station responded. They found it impossible to carry the heavy fire truck across the "Shillington" but took a quantity of chemical extinguisher with them and aided the Port Ewen fire department in preventing a general conflagration. The work of the Port Ewen fire department was highly commended by Deputy Chief Murphy.

Edward McGue estimates that the total loss of machinery, stock and finished shirts in the shirt factory was in the neighborhood of $20,000, and that he is covered by insurance in the agency of Van Ruvan & Fenderson of Fair street, this city, to the extent of about two-thirds.

The garage building, which was owned by Mr. Every, cost about $2,000 to build and was insured for $5,000 in the agency of Van Ruvan & Fenderson of No. 2 East Strand, this city. Mr. Every also carried an insurance in the same agency of $2,000 on his house and 500 on the household furniture. There was no insurance on the contents of the garage.

The neighboring damage, so far as can be learned, is covered by insurance.

The fire placed fifty-eight automobiles in the village out of commission by burning off the cable circuit, destroying insulation. The New York Telephone Company reported that service at work at 4 o'clock that evening and worked until 5:15 o'clock this morning making repairs. It was necessary to install 500 feet of

CALIFORNIA CAN PLACATE JAPS

In Opinion of State Department. By Making Prohibitory Land Laws Apply to All Aliens.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, Dec. 28.—Final settlement of the controversy between the United States and Japan over the California alien law, prohibiting Japanese from owning land, may rest with the state of California itself. It was learned at the state department today.

Following informal announcement from the state department that one of the propositions being discussed in the conversations between Ambassador Shidehara and Roland Morris, ambassador to Japan, was the question of the enactment of a new law in California. Californian members of congress arranged a meeting to be held tomorrow to discuss the advisability of proposing new legislation to their state government.

While the state department announced that no definite agreement had been reached in the conversations with Japan, Representative Kahn of California stated today that he was of the opinion that Japan has withdrawn her opposition to the recently enacted law prohibiting Japanese from acquiring land in California. Representative Kahn made this statement following a conference with Ambassador Morris. It was indicated, however, that if Japan has withdrawn her opposition it is only tentatively pending the enactment of new laws by California covering the subject of land ownership.

Members of the California delegation in congress will discuss tomorrow recommendations that the California state legislature amend the present Japanese land-owning prohibitory act so that the restrictions apply to all aliens. Officials of the state department have stated that they believe such action would bring about a quick settlement of the controversy.

ASKS LIFE TERM FOR MRS. HAMON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ardmore, Okla., Dec. 28.—Life imprisonment will be the penalty exacted by the law from Clara Smith Hamon if she is convicted of the murder of Jake L. Hamon, Oklahoma politician and oil king, according to County Attorney Russell B. Brown today.

Oklahoma law provides either life imprisonment or death in the electric chair for convictions of first degree murder. "I don't like to anticipate action of the court on the Hamon case, but I don't believe the death penalty will be asked," said Brown. "Public opinion would be against the death penalty and the law would be equally satisfied by life imprisonment if Mr. Hamon were convicted."

The town of Ardmore was quiet today. Mrs. Hamon again spent the night at her sister's home in Wilson, Oklahoma.

The temporary omnibus tariff bill and the soldier bonus bill are also likely to meet obstruction by a presidential veto, if they are passed finally by congress, according to information at the White House.

By working all night many of the telephone subscribers were unaware of the fact that their telephones had been placed out of commission. Today the telephone system was again in full operation.

SOVIETS DON'T GET U. S. VIEWPOINT

Tchitcherina Says They Will Not Go Where They Are Not Wanted and Think U. S. Will Lose More Than Russia Through Delay in Resuming Trade.

By Louise Bryant. (Copyright, 1920, by the International News Service.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Moscow, Dec. 28.—George Tchitcherina, Russian soviet commissaire for foreign affairs, has just granted me an exclusive interview for the International News Service regarding the decision of the United States government to deport Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, soviet representative in New York. Mr. Tchitcherina said:

"The decision of the United States government to deport the soviet representative, especially in view of the motivation of that decision, namely, Mr. Martens, being an agent of the soviet government, belongs to an organization seeking to overthrow the United States government, seems to be the product of an incomprehensible panicky state of mind which will appear to impartial observers a puzzling psychological curiosity."

"It would be unkind toward America to believe that the decision represents the opinion of the American people, especially the American workmen, who have given so many proofs of their sympathy toward soviet Russia."

"We also refuse to believe that it represents the viewpoint of American business interests, whose many negotiations with us demonstrate their great desire to reestablish relations with Russia."

"However, the decision to deport our representative precludes the possibility of any and all business with America for the time being."

"We have instructed our representatives to cancel all pending deals until a reversal of the United States decision makes business possible."

"If she must get along without America's cooperation in her economic reconstruction, which needs an immense amount of raw materials, Russia shall do so and it is only fair to say that with peace and the concentration of our forces on economic efforts, together with the readiness of Europe to utilize the Russian market, we shall be less hurt by this incomprehensible attitude of America than America will hurt herself."

"We shall not impose ourselves where we are not wanted."

"We have instructed our representative to return immediately with his staff."

HARDING'S TASKS LOOM LARGER

Solution of Taxation And Tariff In Manner Best Calculated To Preserve Foreign Trade Must Be Found—Exchange Situation Complicates All Else.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, Dec. 28.—The dawn of the new year will find congress still wrestling with the fundamental problems confronting the country—taxation, the tariff and foreign trade—with little prospect of a satisfactory solution being found for either before March 1, it was predicted today.

In the judgment of Republican and Democratic leaders alike, all three problems will rise to vex the Harding administration and the new congress as much as the difficult question of foreign relations. It is conceded by both sides that the omnibus tariff bill, passed by the house recently will not pass the senate unless it is amended materially. A number of commodities inserted in it by a majority of the house will be stripped from it in the senate. Although its supporters claim to have enough votes to jam it through the upper chamber, even they admit it is in grave peril from threatened amendments and debate.

Beyond the emergency tariff policy it involves, senate leaders declared, lies the more important one of maintaining the country's trade balance on an even keel, embracing as it does the far reaching subject of exchange.

Senators opposed to it, like Hitchcock, Democrat of Nebraska, declare it is impossible to construct even temporary tariff barriers to shut out exports to this country, if American producers are to find an outlet for exports to foreign countries.

International trade, they contend, unless conducted on terms of parity, is already so hampered under existing exchange conditions that there now exists economic barriers sufficiently impenetrable without the situation being made worse by the creation of tariff barriers.

It is an open secret in congress that one of the first tasks the Harding administration will have to tend to is the solution of the exchange problem. Another vital question, involving foreign trade and the merchant marine, is that of a complete and official restoration of trade relations between this country and Russia and the central powers. This, of course, involves the replacement of this country on an adequate peace basis, it is pointed out.

There is a well founded report that Great Britain will suggest to President-elect Harding, as soon as he enters the White House, that he summon a world economic conference for the purpose of discussing machinery for the movement of international trade and the readjustment of exchange rates.

CAR THIEVES COME TO GRIEF

Three Young Men Who Took Spinneweb's Auto Stalled on Sleightsburgh Hill and Backed Into Pole, Hurting Some of Them.

This morning Fred J. Spinneweb of Port Ewen drove his Ford sedan from his home down to the Sleightsburgh ferry and parked it on the Port Ewen side while he came across the ferry to get something to eat.

While over in Kingston three young men evidently knowing that Spinneweb would not return for some time, took possession of the car and started to drive up the Sleightsburgh hill. Some distance up the hill the car stalled in the snow and as near as could be learned the young men must have started to back down the hill. The car traveled a short distance and collided with a pole alongside the road smashing up the car and evidently injuring the occupants for there was blood found on the car where it had been abandoned. When Mr. Spinneweb returned to Sleightsburgh and found his car missing he made an investigation and found the car out of commission on the hill. Sheriff Smith was notified and made an investigation later in the day. No arrests were made.

$20,000 FIRE LOSS AT PORT EWEN

Starting in Shirt Factory, Flames Destroy New Garage Building of Merritt. Every as Well as His House and McKenzie Garage—Firemen Did Well Under Handicap.

A disastrous fire which originated in the shirt factory conducted by Edward McTague of this city on the second floor of the new garage building owned by Merritt Every at Port Ewen completely destroyed the garage and factory, the adjoining residence of Mr. Every and the garage of Police Justice Henry E. McKenzie about 7 o'clock Monday evening, with a total loss approximating $20,000.

The building in which the fire originated was erected this year by Mr. Every, who conducted a garage on the lower floor. It was of concrete block and frame construction, two stories in height, with single roof, and was 44 by 80 feet in size. The second floor was occupied as a shirt factory which employed about thirty hands, all girls, except Edward McTague, who conducted the business, and his younger brother, James McTague. They are brothers of Hugh F. McTague, the newsdealer of No. 48 Broadway, this city. Edward McTague resides at No. 25 Adams street. The output of the factory was taken by W. H. Rosen & Company of No. 569 Broadway, New York city, who are believed also to have been financially interested in the enterprise.

Edward McTague spent Christmas in Vermont, returning home Sunday, and was at the factory on Monday. The factory closed about 5:30 o'clock, when the employees left the building, and he left there at about 6:30 o'clock. Neither he nor his brother ever smoked in the factory, he says, and there was nobody else employed there who smoked. At the time he left, he says, there was no indication of fire and everything appeared to be all right. The machinery was operated by electric current, which was also used for lighting. Heat was supplied by a heater which was nearly in the center of the main room, a metal cover at the top operating to radiate the heat. James McTague generally attended to the heater in addition to his duties as shirt cutter.

Several men who were standing in front of the garage about ten minutes past seven o'clock say they heard an explosion on the second floor, and immediately afterward smoke began to come through the ceiling of the garage. A few minutes later, the entire second floor appeared to be in flames. During the fire, according to various residents of the neighborhood who hastened to the scene, there were several other explosions.

The Port Ewen fire department responded promptly but had no water supply and were compelled to rely on their chemical apparatus. Two forty-gallon tanks were emptied on the flames, but without much success. While the fire was raging on the second floor of the building, neighbors removed four automobiles and several barrels of lubricating oil from the garage. The flames and heat prevented the rescue of one car and a quantity of oil and automobile accessories, which were destroyed.

Adjoining the garage was the residence of Mr. Every. The flames from the garage building leaped to the house, from which neighbors succeeded in removing most of the furniture. The house burned rapidly and was completely destroyed.

Adjoining the garage on the opposite side is the law office of Henry E. McKenzie, and also a garage. The latter building was destroyed. The law office was there several times but the flames were extinguished. The contents of the office were damaged somewhat by smoke and water.

On the opposite side of the street several houses were blistered by the heat, and canvas soaked with chemical preparation was hung over them. There was a huge quantity of sparks from the fire which alighted on many nearby roofs but the snow prevented further spread of the flames.

A call for help was sent to the Kingston Fire Department and Deputy Fire Chief Murphy and firemen from the Central Fire station responded. They found it impossible to carry the heavy fire truck across the "Skillypot" but took a quantity of chemical extinguisher with them and aided the Port Ewen fire department in preventing a general conflagration. The work of the Port Ewen fire department was highly commended by Deputy Chief Murphy.

Edward McTague estimates that the total loss of machinery, stock and finished shirts in the shirt factory was in the neighborhood of $8,000, and that he is covered by insurance in the agency of Van Buren & Feasenden of Fair street, this city, to the extent of about two-thirds.

The garage building, which was owned by Mr. Every, cost about $1,000 to build and was insured for $1,000 in the agency of Van Buren & Feasenden of No. 2 East Strand, this city. Mr. Every carried an insurance in the same agency of $1,000 on his house and 75c on the household furniture. There was no insurance on the contents of the garage.

The neighboring damage, so far as can be learned, is covered by insurance.

CALIFORNIA CAN PLACATE JAPS

In Opinion of State Department, By Making Prohibitory Land Laws Apply to All Aliens.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, Dec. 28.—Final settlement of the controversy between the United States and Japan over the California alien law, prohibiting Japanese from owning land, may rest with the state of California itself. It was learned at the state department today.

Following informal announcement from the state department that one of the propositions being discussed in the conversations between Ambassador Shidehara and Roland Morris, ambassador to Japan, was the question of the enactment of a new law in California. Californian members of congress arranged a meeting to be held tomorrow to discuss the advisability of proposing new legislation to their state government.

While the state department announced that no definite agreement had been reached in the conversations with Japan, Representative Kahn of California stated today that he was of the opinion that Japan has withdrawn her opposition to the recently enacted law prohibiting Japanese from acquiring land in California. Representative following a conference with Ambassador Morris. It was indicated, however, that if Japan has withdrawn her opposition it is only tentatively pending the enactment of new laws by California covering the subject of land ownership.

Members of the California delegation in congress will discuss tomorrow recommendations that the California state legislature amend the present Japanese land-owning prohibitory act so that the restrictions apply to all aliens. Officials of the state department have stated that they believe such action would bring about a quick settlement of the controversy.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ardmore, Okla., Dec. 28.—Life imprisonment will be the penalty exacted by the law from Clara Smith Hamon if she is convicted of the murder of Jake L. Hamon, Oklahoma politician and oil king, according to County Attorney Russell B. Brown today.

Oklahoma law provides either life imprisonment or death in the electric chair for convictions of first degree murder.

"I don't like to anticipate action of the court on the Hamon case, but I don't believe the death penalty will be asked," said Brown. "Public opinion would be against the death penalty and the law would be equally satisfied by life imprisonment if Mrs. Hamon were convicted."

The town of Ardmore was quiet today. Mrs. Hamon again spent the night at her sister's home in Wilson, Oklahoma.

The temporary omnibus tariff bill and the soldier bonus bill are also likely to meet obstruction by a presidential veto, if they are passed finally by congress, according to information at the White House.

SOVIETS DON'T GET U. S. VIEWPOINT

Tchitcherin Says They Will Not Go Where They Are Not Wanted and Thinks U. S. Will Lose More Than Russia Through Delay in Resuming Trade.

By Louise Bryant. (Copyright, 1920, by the International News Service.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Moscow, Dec. 28.—George Tchitcherin, Russian soviet commissaire for foreign affairs, has just granted me an exclusive interview for the International News Service regarding the decision of the United States government to deport Ludwig C. A. K. Mariens, soviet representative in New York. Mr. Tchitcherin said:

"The decision of the United States government to deport the soviet representative, especially in view of the motivation of that decision, namely, Mr. Mariens, being an agent of the soviet government, belongs to an organization seeking by force and violence to overthrow the United States government, seems to be the product of an incomprehensible panicky state of mind which will appear to impartial observers a puzzling psychological curiosity."

"It would be unkind toward America to believe that the decision represents the opinion of the American people, especially the American workmen, who have given so many proofs of their sympathy toward soviet Russia."

"We also refuse to believe that it represents the viewpoint of American business interests, whose many negotiations with us demonstrate their great desire to reestablish relations with Russia."

"However, the decision to deport our representative precludes the possibility of any and all business with America for the time being."

"We have instructed our representatives to cancel all pending deals until a reversal of the United States decision makes business possible."

"If she must get along without America's cooperation in her economic reconstruction, which needs an immense amount of raw materials, Russia shall do so and it is only fair to say that with peace and the concentration of our forces on economic efforts, together with the readiness of Europe to utilize the Russian market, we shall be less hurt by this incomprehensible attitude of America than America will hurt herself."

"We shall not impose ourselves where we are not wanted."

"We have instructed our representative to return immediately with his staff."

HARDING'S TASKS LOOM LARGER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 28.—The dawn of the new year will find congress still wrestling with the fundamental problems confronting the country—taxation, the tariff and foreign trade—with little prospect of a satisfactory solution being found for either before March 4, it was predicted today.

In the judgment of Republican and Democratic leaders alike, all three problems will rise to vex the Harding administration and the new congress as much as the difficult question of foreign relations.

It is conceded by both sides that the omnibus tariff bill, passed by the house recently, will not pass the senate unless it is amended materially. A number of commodities inserted in it by a majority of the house will be stripped from it in the senate. Although its supporters claim to have enough votes to jam it through the upper chamber, even they admit it is in grave peril from threatened amendments and debate.

Beyond the emergency tariff policy it involves, senate leaders declared, lies the more important one of maintaining the country's trade balance on an even keel, embracing as it does the far reaching subject of exchange.

Senators opposed to it, like Hitchcock, Democrat of Nebraska, declare it is impossible to construct even temporary tariff barriers to shut out exports to this country, if American producers are to find an outlet for exports to foreign countries.

International trade, they contend, unless conducted on terms of parity, is already so hampered under existing exchange conditions that there now exists economic barriers sufficiently impenetrable without the situation being made worse by the erection of tariff barriers.

It is an open secret in congress that one of the first tasks the Harding administration will have to tend to is the solution of the exchange problem. Another vital question, involving foreign trade and the merchant marine, is that of a complete and official restoration of trade relations between this country and Russia and between this country and the central powers.

This, of course, involves the replacement of this country on an adequate peace basis, it is pointed out.

There is a well founded report that Great Britain will suggest to President-elect Harding, as soon as he enters the White House, that he summon a world economic conference for the purpose of discussing machinery for the movement of international trade and the readjustment of exchange rates.

CAR THIEVES COME TO GRIEF

Three Young Men Who Took Spinneberger's Auto Mailed on Sleightsburgh Hill and Backed into Pole, Hurting Some of Them.

This morning Fred J. Spinneweber of Port Ewen drove his Ford sedan from his home down to the Sleightsburgh ferry and parked it on the Port Ewen side while he came across the ferry to get something to eat. While over in Kingston three young men evidently knowing that Spinneweber would not return for some time, took possession of the car and started to drive up the Sleightsburgh hill. Some distance up the hill the car stalled in the snow and as near as could be learned the young men must have started to back down the hill. The car traveled a short distance and collided with a pole alongside the road smashing up the car and evidently injuring the occupants for there was blood found on the car where it had been abandoned. When Mr. Spinneweber returned to Sleightsburgh and found his car missing he made an investigation and found the car out of commission on the hill. Sheriff Smith was notified and made an investigation later in the day. No arrests were made.

NEWS FROM FIUME IS CONFLICTING

(By The International News Service) Aside from the fact that the regular Italian troops at Fiume apparently dominate the situation, the news came out of this "war theater" today was conflicting.

It has been confirmed that Gabriele d'Annunzio, the commandant of the legionnaires in the beleaguered city, has been wounded. Reports that d'Annunzio had been killed persisted but without any confirmation and were generally discredited.

A dispatch from Rome quoted Premier Giolitti, of Italy, as saying that there was reason to believe that the regulars already occupied the city. This was followed a few hours later by another Rome telegram which quoted the Italian premier as saying that Fiume would be occupied either this evening or tomorrow morning.

The city was under bombardment by Italian warships. Nearly forty members of the civilian population were killed and wounded by shells and rifle balls.

The casualties of the carabinieri and the legionnaires have not yet been announced, but it is believed that they will be large.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Rome, Dec. 28.—There is belief that the Italian regular troops have occupied Fiume. Premier Giolitti announced today.

Paris, Dec. 28.—Nine civilian residents of Fiume have been killed and thirty wounded by the bombardment of the city by Italian regulars, said a dispatch from Milan today.

A new version of the manner in which Gabriele d'Annunzio was wounded, came from Milan. It was said that a shell from a warship in the harbor struck the governor's palace and exploded and that a fragment struck the warlord's foot.

Fiume is completely surrounded by government troops.

There is still no confirmation of the report that d'Annunzio is dead.

Paris, Dec. 28.—A portion of that section of Fiume lying near the waterfront has been wrecked by shells from the Italian regulars' artillery according to reports received here today from Uffine.

Gabriele d'Annunzio was wounded while on the flying line with his men directing the defense of the city.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Rome said it was officially denied that d'Annunzio had been killed, although reports persist in some northern Italian cities that the warlord's foot had met his death Monday morning.

London, Dec. 28.—Thirty of the Italian regulars attacking Fiume have been killed and 200 wounded, said a dispatch from Trieste today.

A telegram received at 8:04 this morning stated that surrender by the legionnaires was believed imminent. The mayor of Fiume had requested a truce, but it was refused. The mayor then arranged to meet General Ferrario for fresh negotiations later in the day.

London, Dec. 28.—An Italian crowd, sympathetic to Gabriele d'Annunzio, attacked and stormed Premier Giolitti's residence in Rome, according to a Rome dispatch to the Daily Express today.

Rome invaded the "Elite" Concert, shouting and bearing banners, but was ejected by the audience.

It is reported in Rome that two attempts at rebellion at Fiume were suppressed by d'Annunzio.

London, Dec. 28.—Gabriele d'Annunzio from the beleaguered city of Fiume sent the following Christmas greetings to the government at Rome by wireless, according to a Rome dispatch to the Daily Express today:

"Italy celebrated Christmas night by massacring Italian soldiers in Italian Fiume. Gabriele d'Annunzio saluted his executioners."

GREENE, TOO, WANTS JUSTICE

The election of Supreme Court Justice Emory A. Chase of Catskill as associate judge of the court of appeals at the last election creates a vacancy in the supreme court bench upon his taking his new office on January first, and Governor-elect Miller will make an appointment to fill the vacancy for one year.

The third judicial district comprises the counties of Albany, Rensselaer, Schoharie, Columbia, Greene, Ulster and Sullivan. The judges of the district are Justices William P. Rudd and Harold J. Hinson of Albany; Justice Wesley O. Howard of Rensselaer; Justice Charles E. Nichols of Schoharie; Justice Aaron V. S. Cochran of Columbia; Justice Emory A. Chase of Greene and Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck of Ulster.

For a number of years Judge Chase has served as an additional member of the court of appeals by appointment of successive governors. Judge Cochran is now serving as a member of the appellate division of the third department by designation of the governor, so at the present time three counties are without a resident justice of the supreme court who can perform the duties of trial and special term work. Supreme court justices who are serving by designation on the court of appeals or the appellate division bench cannot perform the active duties of trial or special term work with the result that Greene and Columbia county lawyers go to other justices of the district with their motions. Sullivan county never has had a resident supreme court justice.

Several years ago, when an additional judgeship was created in the third judicial district, to enable Schoharie county to have a resident justice, an additional judgeship also was to have been created in the district which it was expected would provide a resident justice for Sullivan county. There was great opposition, however, to the creation of two additional judgeships in the district, and the legislature provided for one judgeship, which is now filled by Justice Charles E. Nichols of Schoharie.

Since the election of Judge Chase to the court of appeals bench, both Greene and Sullivan counties have been urging the appointment of a resident of their own county to fill the vacancy. Greene county's candidate is understood to be William E. Thorpe of Catskill. Sullivan county's candidate is understood to be Joseph Rosch of Liberty. Both are well known and have many friends in Kingston.

PALENTOWN

Paletown, Dec. 27.—Much credit is due our teacher, Miss Sherman, for the school entertainment held in the school house December 23. All enjoyed it very much. The children did their parts so well and the songs they sang were very beautiful. Those who were sick last week are much better at this writing. Our school is closed until January 2.

Homosfun Yarn.
A soft rug to stand on while ironing will save many a backache.
A thin coat of shellac will lengthen the life of the kitchen linoleum.

The good old custom of reading aloud under the evening lamp is an antidote to many forms of present-day restlessness.

For a salad: Let onion's atoms lurk within the bowl, and scarce suspected, animate the whole.—Sidney Smith.

If the meat bill seems high, try meatless meals. A leaflet from the college of agriculture at Ithaca tells about them.

Some children go breakfastless to school. This increases the seriousness of the child health problem in the country.

To persuade children to eat and like foods which are good for them may be difficult, but it is worth the effort; right food habits should be formed early in life.

If some of the new toys are put away soon after Christmas, when they are brought out again in a few weeks or months the children can enjoy the delights of Christmas all over again.

FLEISCHMANN'S BEAT ONEONTA.

Faulkner and Jocelyn Share Honors of 20 to 16 Victory.

The Fleischmanns Crescents won from Oneonta at Fleischmanns last Friday evening before a record crowd by the score of 20 to 16. The game lasted fifty minutes, the score being a tie at the end of the regular time, 14 to 14. Then two five minute periods were played before a decision was reached. The first half was lightning fast and the lead changed hands often during the twenty minutes of play. When the whistle finally blew for intermission the score was 8 to 6, Oneonta leading the Crescents. The second half opened with the Crescents taking the lead by some brilliant passwork and shooting. However the Oneonta team rallied and at the final whistle the score was 14 all.

Then after two minutes' rest, play began again, started with a field goal by Oneonta. Fleischmanns then with two points behind were struggling for the tying points and owing to close guarding Oneonta fouled twice and once more the venerable, Faulkner, saved the game by making both fouls and tying the score 16 to 16.

In the last five minute period, after two minutes rest, both teams struggled for three minutes without a score, then Jocelyn got away for two shots and made them both good ending the game with a score, 20 to 16.

Faulkner and Jocelyn did the scoring for Fleischmanns while Barrett's floor work was good. Persons and Shaver did some wonderful guarding while for Oneonta the two forwards featured.

Next Friday, New Year's Eve, the Fleischmanns Crescents meet the Central A. C., of Newark, N. J. Dancing will follow the game.

Then why not buy a fireless cooker—By using one, you may purchase the cheaper cuts of meat and cut your table expenses considerably.

Put a half a ham in the cooker at night and don't take it out until 11 o'clock next day. You will save fuel and your meat will taste delicious too—By it.

Aside from the fact that the regular Italian troops at Fiume apparently dominate the situation, the news came out of this "war theater" today was conflicting.

A dispatch from Rome quoted Premier Giolitti, of Italy, as saying that there was reason to believe that the regulars already occupied the city. This was followed a few hours later by another Rome telegram, which quoted the Italian premier as saying that Fiume would be occupied.

The city was under bombardment by Italian warships. Nearly forty members of the civilian population were killed and wounded by shells and rifle balls.

The casualties of the carabinieri and the legionnaires have not yet been announced, but it is believed that they will be large.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 28, 1920.

Though our planet has been reasonably safe for democracy, it is manifest that the conclusion of some that kings had gone out of fashion was altogether too hasty. There is still room for kings in this changeable yet fundamentally unchanging world. This has been made unquestionable by the wild enthusiasm of the Greek populace when Constantine returned. With all his faults, and in spite of Allied disapproval, they are evidently intensely loyal to him. Another indication of the same sort may be seen in the large majorities returned by the monarchist party in the general elections in Spain. Even in our American republic there is a noticeable tendency among the people to look to a single head of the government and to attribute to the President powers constitutionally belonging to co-ordinate branches of our governmental system.

PRACTICE WHAT YOU PREACH.

The people of this state and nation are fortunate just now, when tremendous problems are to be adjusted, that the Republican party is in power. The people need intelligence in the administration of their affairs and there is every reason to look for a readjustment that will be satisfactory to the majority. During the past few years there has been wild extravagance in Washington and the Democratic administration in the state has submitted recommendations, which would have thrown the state into bankruptcy, had Governor Smith put his recommendations into operation.

The whole tendency has been to get away from fixed principles and to adopt paternalistic measures which do not belong in the system of conducting public business. The idea that the state should do this, that, and the other thing, has been destructive and those who have favored this purpose on the assumption that they would get something for nothing forgot that in the end the people themselves would pay the expense. This is the real reason why the expense of the state government has mounted almost to the sky and it is the reason why the people are insisting upon a reduction in the cost of administration. The thinking people have opened their eyes to the truth that they should support the government and that they should not expect the government to support them.

These facts have been uppermost in the mind of Governor-elect Miller and his determination that there will be a reduction in state expenditures is receiving the heartiest approbation. The governor-elect is not the type to preach one thing and practice another, or to preach that the people should be economical while the state is spending money right and left. He has declared that the state, in the matter of economy, will practice just what is being preached and by following this course he will retain the confidence of the people. His determination may be disturbing to a few but it will meet with the endorsement of the many and that is what counts.

IS IT A SAFETY-VALVE?

British observers who are said to be studying the results of prohibition in the United States with scientific impartiality will doubtless take note of the following from Dr. Carleton Simon, deputy police commissioner of New York, on the subject of the crime wave in that city: "I don't believe prohibition has produced a greater number of criminals, but it has closed up the 'dive' and rendezvous where the underworld element was able to receive their usual 'Dutch courage whiskey.' Since these places have been closed up, the criminal element has been driven into the streets and other places, and being unable to obtain the Dutch courage, they resort to the use of drugs. An increase in the use of drugs has been noticed in a large degree in the morning line-ups at police headquarters. It seems as if the criminal element all over the United States is about to come from the use of drugs."

This will interest British students disposed to accept the theory that the use of alcohol is the cause of crime.

certain contentment, thus acting as a sort of safety-valve in the case of elements of the population inclined toward criminal courses and the classes which, because of their hard-tread-mill, hopeless struggle for existence, are inclined toward violent resentment against the inequalities of human society. While admitting that prohibition may do more good than harm in the rural districts, they think there will be a dreadful running amuck of the criminal and discontented elements in great cities, London especially, when this "safety-valve" no longer functions. Whether in such cities prohibition in the long run will do more good than the removal of the "safety-valve" will do harm, is the question. And the maddening effect of drugs resorted to when liquor is beyond reach is believed to render more doubtful an answer in favor of prohibition's effect on large elements in urban populations. In view of the present American "crime waves," this British safety-valve theory is not without interest.

COMMUNITY HOUSE OPENED

Christmas Tree And Visit From Santa Claus At Crosspatch.

Santa Claus made probably his first visit of the season to Crosspatch Community House on the evening of December 23.

Before dark, people began to drop in and by the time Santa Claus knocked on the front door, there were over 100 people, all on tip toe to see the lovely tree (hidden behind a curtain until the arrival of Santa Claus).

Old St. Nick, seeing there was no snow on the mountain, stabled his reindeer lower in the valley and sent up a big hamper of filled stockings by aeroplane. Every man, woman and child received a stocking filled with nuts, candy and Christmas toys. The grown people seemed to have as much fun playing with dolls and blowing horns as the children.

When Santa Claus came in, garbed in the traditional red coat and cap, trimmed with white fur, the children all joined hands and danced around him. The lights were turned low and the lovely, solemnly ornamented tree stood forth in the glitter of many tiny electric lights. It was ablaze with ornaments and Santa Claus seemed pleased with it.

Then the children of Captain Cross's Sunday school recited a very old English Christmas carol, which he had taught them as a greeting to Santa Claus. Those reciting were Goldie Willis, Elmer and Margaret Benjamin and Paul and Irving Ostrander. Though it was their first appearance before a large audience, the children showed no stage fright, but recited clearly and with good expression. They were enthusiastically applauded.

Besides the filled stockings, there was a big box of gifts exchanged between friends, so it was nearly nine o'clock when Santa Claus reluctantly tore himself away.

Young people and elderly people danced until after midnight. Captain and Mrs. Cross gave a free oyster supper with cake and coffee. This was a pleasant surprise after the stockings and the Christmas tree.

The tree with its decorations will be kept and illuminated for the New Year's Eve celebration.

GOV. EDWARDS IS DENOUNCED

Together With Others As Being Partially Responsible For Killing of Federal Prohibition Officers By Rum Runners.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Dec. 28.—"The governor of New Jersey in his nullification program against prohibition aided in this offense," declared Wayne D. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, in a statement issued today concerning the killing of Prohibition Officer McGuinness at Bayonne, N. J.

"Bootleggers and rum runners are not the only ones responsible for the murder of federal and state prohibition officers," Wheeler said.

"Every public officer who takes an oath of office to support the constitution and enforce the law and then condemns the law and condones the offense is inviting the murder of these officers."

"The governor of New Jersey in his nullification program against prohibition aided this offense."

"Within a month two faithful federal agents were shot" in Milwaukee by these outlaws.

"The federal grand jury in Milwaukee encouraged these outrages by their recent inexcusable declaration against the law. The United States district attorney who evidently permitted it without a protest to the court is in an unenviable position."

"The United States district attorney in Boston who spends more time condemning the law than enforcing it, is jeopardizing the lives of officers in that state."

EXPERT VISITS ROACH PLANT

And Makes A Report of His Investigation to Mayor Canfield Together With Proposed Plan To Eliminate Odor Complained of By Residents of Sixth Ward.

An expert from the American By-Products Machinery Company of New York city, at the request of William Roach of Roach Brothers, recently made an inspection of the Roach plant on Ann street, about which the residents of the Sixth ward had lodged complaints with the local health board and also with the state health board regarding the odors from the plant. The result of the inspection has been communicated to Mayor Canfield by the New York conference in the following letter:

"At the written request of Mr. Roach of Roach Brothers, Kingston, N. Y., I visited their plant yesterday, December 19, and made a study of conditions of same with a view to determining the source of odors, said to be emanating from that plant and to determine whether if such were the case, these odors could be controlled in such a way as to cause no further nuisance.

I find as follows:

First—Roach Brothers are handling butchers' fat collected from the markets of Kingston.

Second—They cook one tank practically every day.

Third—As the material which they handle is relatively fresh, the production of odors is much less than would be the case with a different class of material such as dead animals, etc.

Fourth—The main volume of odors and those which travel farthest are those emitting in the cooking process by permitting the gases which form at the top of the tank in the cooking process to escape into the air.

In this plant I find that provision has been made to take these vapors from the top of the tank by means of a pipe line and pass them through the water condenser which destroys all that portion of the vapors which are condensable, and the slight remaining amount of odor non-condensable, is then carried without exposure to the air to a septic tank, located outside the building.

You may therefore, dismiss the production of odors from this source except insofar as the failure of the operator of the plant to use the devices might occur. We hardly think that this condition would occur as the pipe connections are solid all the way and even if the operator failed to use the jet condenser, the vapors would stay in the septic tank, and would be shortly condensed there.

Fifth—I find that the principal source of odor comes from the steaming material at the time it is removed from the cooking tank and placed in a hydraulic press. We call this class of odor "room odor" and owing to the fact that the building is by no means tight, these odors could easily go into the outside air. When you consider, however, that the period during which these odors emanate is confined to about two hours in the morning, it is obvious that this could be noticed only in the immediate neighborhood, and the volume is so small in comparison to the amount of air in which they mingle, that one is almost tempted to look for ulterior reasons for a complaint. Assuming, however, that these complaints are genuine, these odors could be eliminated by the following procedure:

(a) The enclosing of the tank and press room in such a way as to make it impossible for the vapors to escape therefrom.

(b) The installation of a suitable duct system connected to an exhaust fan which would be connected from the outside of the room for collecting and removing the vapors.

(c) When these vapors pass through the fan, they must pass into a geodizing machine so as to condense the condensable vapor and if necessary impregnate the non-condensable with the odor of tar, or completely destroying it by the use of sulphur compound mixed with the air before it reaches the condenser.

(d) As to the above, the amount of the vapor and the short length of time in which it is released makes it appear that no more than the condensing chamber will be required, and I am therefore in a position to make the following recommendation to eliminate the nuisance, and if you will see to it that Roach Brothers carry these recommendations out immediately the nuisance emanating from this plant will cease, always providing that the operator uses the devices installed.

First—Roach Brothers to have the press room under the specifications with which we will supply them, enclosed.

Second—That they are to install the necessary mechanical equipment, specifications of which will be given them.

Third—They are to operate such apparatus after same has been installed and during the time when the odors are passing into the room from the material.

Very truly yours,
American By-Product Machinery Co.
By ROBERT P. BENNETT,
President.

ALLIES TO CONFER ON GERMAN DELAY

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, Dec. 28.—The allegation that Germany has failed to disarm as she promised to do at the Spa conference will be taken up by the Anglo-Franco-Italian conference which will convene in a few days at Nice.

Germany had previously been warned that, unless she carried out the disarmament conditions imposed at Spa, allied troops would extend zones of occupation in Germany and take over the Ruhr valley, the chief coal fields of Germany.

The inter-allied mission in Berlin, headed by General Nollet, is reported to have turned over documents and figures to the council of ambassadors to prove that Germany had not reduced her armed forces in accordance with the Spa agreement.

The council of ambassadors decided, however, that it was not competent to deal with this important matter and the question of German disarmament is now being put squarely up to the allied governments themselves. The next allied decision in the matter will be taken at Nice.

Curci. The divorce was granted in Chicago. Mme Galli-Curci was born in Milan, Italy, November 18, 1889.

Last Art.

An old shipyard who has just died in a village a few miles from here was unable to count beyond three. Nevertheless, he had charge of huge stocks of ship and could tell not merely when one was stolen, but which particular vessel had disappeared. The old man was unwilling to explain how he did it, and the secret had died with him.—Kingston Postcard correspondence, Kingston Daily Mail.

FARMER AND CONSUMER LOSE

Says Senator Capper, Through Our Family Food Distribution System—Food Wanted in One Section Is Wanted in Another.

By Arthur Capper.
United States Senator from Kansas.
Washington, Dec. 28.—Something is radically wrong with a national system of distribution which permits of absolute waste of food in one section of the country when in other sections there exists good demand. That condition occurs frequently in the United States. In the fruit-producing sections of Michigan and New York press reports declare that large quantities of fruit rotted and was wasted because there was no market for it. At the same time high prices prevailed for fruit in the mid-west, where the crop was cut short by late spring frosts. Producers in New York and Michigan, the reports state, did not obtain profitable prices for their crop despite the fact that other sections of the country were anxious to buy. Probably inadequate transportation facilities and shortage of labor were factors in this condition. But at any rate the system of distribution failed to function to the profit either of the producer or the consumer.

How Dollar Is Divided.
There is an enormous spread between the price the producer obtains for his products and the price the consumer pays for them. This spread occurs in the marketing and distribution of those products. The California Fruit Growers' Exchange made an investigation to determine how the consumer's dollar was divided. Thirty representative markets were included, and 5,475 reports were obtained. The results showed that the factors entering into the division of the consumer's dollar spent in buying citrus fruit in 1914, are:

Retail distribution cost (gross), 33.3 per cent; jobbers' distribution cost (gross), 8.5 per cent; growers' selling cost, 1.2 per cent; freight and refrigeration cost, 20.6 per cent; packing house cost, 7.4 per cent; cost of picking and hauling to packing house, 2.4 per cent; proportion retained for fruit on the tree, 76.7 per cent.

These figures are supplied by G. Harold Powell, general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, Los Angeles. They show that the retailer gets 33.3 per cent and the grower 26.7 per cent of the consumer's dollar. The cost of jobbing and retailing is 41.5 per cent. In one town the jobber's markup was 10 per cent, and in another town 22 per cent, showing a wide variation. The retailers' margins ran from 20 to 75 per cent.

Herbert Hoover recently made this statement: "The margins between our farmers and the wholesalers in commodities—other than grain, in some instances—often in normal times, are the highest in any civilized country—fully 25 per cent higher than in most European countries."

Where Farmer Loses.
Mr. Hoover also said: "Analysis of the character of the margin between the farmer and the wholesaler will show that decreases in price find immediate reflection on the farmer, while immediate increases in price are absorbed by the trades between, and the farmer gets but a lagging increase."

Prices of hogs obtained by farmers, prices paid by the consumer and the margin between, as shown in government statistics for 1914, 1919 and 1920, indicate an enormous loss to both the producer and the consumer—to the one in the low price obtained and to the other in the excessive price paid. These figures are:

Price of hogs in principal states:
1914, $7.45; 1919, $15.27; 1920, $15.37. Price of cured products to consumer for the 100-pound hog: 1914, $18.97; 1919, $27.23; 1920, $27.71. Margin between the farmer and the consumer, 1914, $11.52; 1919, $21.05; 1920, $22.34.

While the farmer has gained about $7.92 in price the margin has increased by $10.82 to the consumer. The consumer has paid 30 cents more while the farmer got 30 cents less during the last year.

Family Transportation.
Inadequate transportation facilities add to the costliness of the distribution system. In the face of a car shortage the producer cannot move his products readily, and often is forced to sell on a glutted market at low prices. The consumer, on the other hand, is forced to pay an increased price for his foodstuffs due to a lack of equipment to bring the commodities to market. An investigation made by United States Food Administration showed that in the case of potatoes the margin between the producer and the consumer broadened 100 per cent in periods of car shortage.

Enormous numbers of persons are engaged in the final processes of distribution. The result of such a condition is that the retailers operate on a high margin and that only a small income is obtained by any of them.

Thus it is evident that our wasteful system of distribution is an annual tax on both the producer and the consumer. This can be reduced. It will be possible to place a larger part of the consumer's dollar in the hands of the farmer and at the same time supply food to the cities at a lower cost.

WHITE HOUSE TO BE A HOME

Under Harding Regime—Negal Pump and Ceremony of Wilson Administration To Be Banished And "Gates Will Be Open."

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Dec. 28.—It looks like a bad four years for the "royalty" at the White House.

Regal mannered servants and hunkies who have lorded it to their supreme delight for many years at the White House are likely to find it necessary to drop their royal mien when President-elect Harding takes up his abode in the Pennsylvania mansion.

Next to an outcast Duke a White House servant is quite the most regal person in the United States.

The Hardings are about as democratic people as there are in the United States.

Either the Hardings or the White House "royalty" must change their ways, and the odds are in favor of the Hardings remaining democratic.

The White House gates are going to be open for the next four years—Mrs. Harding promises it.

The White House is going to be a social center again and the Hardings are going to entertain their friends. The stately old mansion is going to have new visitors in the next administration.

Harry M. Daugherty will probably be one of the most frequent visitors, and he is not likely to tolerate the royal deference of the White House servants which has been paid Colonel House and Bernard Baruch. Instead Daugherty, who is a Columbus, Ohio, lawyer of bluff good-natured manners, will stalk into the White House with its little ceremony as he has stalked into the Marion home of the Hardings for the last twenty years. Daugherty will probably be a cabinet member, but this won't change his manner or unassuming good nature.

If Harry Daugherty is a frequent White House visitor it is a safe bet that Jess W. Smith, of Washington Courthouse, Ohio, will also be a frequent visitor at the presidential mansion. Wherever Daugherty is there is Smith, and Jess is already pretty close to the president-elect and considered a part of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Deale McLean, social leaders of Washington, are close friends of the Hardings and they will be frequent guests at the White House. Mrs. McLean, who is a motion picture fan and who has made reels and reels of pictures of the president-elect, will probably take over the management of many of the White House motion picture shows.

The president usually has a physician from the Army or Naval Medical Corps. Dr. C. E. Sawyer is the Hardings' family physician, adviser and friend. He is over sixty and probably couldn't be made an admiral or a major-general, but Dr. and Mrs. Sawyer are certain to spend a good bit of their time about the White House. Senator Lodge and some other Republican leaders will probably be frequent visitors at the White House for business reasons, but the Senators who will slide into the White House in the evening on pleasure bent will probably be Senator Fred Hale, of Maine; Senator Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey and Senator Davis Elkins of West Virginia. These men have long been playmates of the president-elect and they know how to make a bridge game interesting for either Senator or Mrs. Harding. The changes are ten to one that most of their evening calls at the White House will be sans evening clothes, too, for they are as ardent advocates of informality as the president-elect.

Necessity may make the White House under the Hardings a social centre. The habits of the Hardings will make the White House a home, a typical American home without form, pomp or ceremony.

So, altogether, it looks like a hard four years for the White House "royalty."

MINORS WANT MORE TO SAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Dec. 28.—Sentiment against several provisions in the proposed new national major-minor league agreement is growing among the minors and will be strongly voiced at the next joint meeting in Chicago January 12, it developed today.

The minors agreed to act jointly with the majors in reconstruction of the government of the game. It is pointed out, with the understanding that they are to have an equal voice in all future councils in which they might have any interest, and they will insist on this right.

While the text of the proposed agreement has not been made public, it is apparent that while some of the minor leagues may be satisfied with the pact, this sentiment is not unanimous.

In a circular sent out by George H. Maines, president of the Michigan-Ontario League, and a member of the minor league committee, sentiment as expressed by the objecting faction is set forth in a lengthy statement embodying the following principal points:

An important clause in any major-minor pact should provide for the settlement of disputes between leagues, clubs or individuals of the parties to the agreement.

That it should provide for making rules, regulations or amendments of mutual interest to both parties.

That it should officially recognize Judge K. M. Landis as the commissioner of organized baseball, empowering him to act for majors and minors alike.

That it should provide for some voice for the minors except where "action directly affecting a minor league club is to be taken."

And that the minors should have voice on any advisory council which is formed.

The circular also voices objection to the manner in which the proposed agreement treats settlement of the draft question.

As some minors see it one section of the tentative pact could be used as a settlement of the draft question by the commissioner, and a league made to accept the terms decided upon by him.

The suggestions embodied in the circular are not antagonistic. They are meant to be constructive and to strengthen the position of the minors.

TO ELECT NEW BISHOP JAN. 26

The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires,

president of the standing committee of the New York diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church, announced Monday that the special diocesan convention for the election of a successor to Bishop Burch has been called for January 26, in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

In the special convention will be assembled the clergy of the diocese, who number 420, and also lay delegates representing the 297 separate parishes of the diocese. After nominations for bishop have been closed and the balloting begins, the clerical and the parish lay delegates vote separately. Each clergyman in good standing is entitled to vote. Each of the parishes also casts a single vote through its lay delegates. There is no election until a majority of the votes of each of the two bodies, voting separately, is cast for the same nominee. When that happens, the favored candidate is declared elected.

A newly elected bishop, however, cannot enter immediately upon his full episcopal duties. The solemn rite of consecration must be consummated until after the choice of the special convention shall have been confirmed and ratified by a majority of all the bishops of the church, which requires sometimes a considerable period. Consecration was not an incident of the elevation of Bishop Burch as Bishop Greer's successor, because Bishop Burch already had attained episcopal rank and had been consecrated when he was made suffragan bishop in 1911.

The states that will be represented are: New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maryland, Connecticut, Colorado, Wisconsin, Montana, Minnesota, Oregon, West Virginia, Louisiana, Washington, Florida, Tennessee and Oklahoma.

HARDING HEARS SENATE SITUATION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Marion, O., Dec. 28.—Senator Porter J. McCumber of North Dakota, found a wide range of subjects opened to him when he conferred today with Senator Harding.

Senator McCumber is ranking member at present of the senate finance committee, which has in charge the new tariff legislation, which is being vigorously opposed by Democratic leaders.

Possibilities of a Democratic filibuster, as indicated by Senator Harrison and others, were fully discussed by the president-elect and his senatorial colleague. Senator Harding, during his recent election campaign, advocated a strong tariff for the protection of agriculturalists and is known to be strongly interested in the pending legislation.

Senator McCumber is also a member of the agricultural affairs committee and in a position to give expert advice on the probable action in the senate on appropriation measures.

An indication of Senator Harding's attitude toward Democratic obstructive tactics may be gleaned from an editorial printed today in the Marion Star, of which he is still editor. The Star points out what it declares is the meanest absurdity of the system which permits a defeated party to obstruct or delay measures favored by the successful party for four months after election.

Oscar S. Straus, of New York, former secretary of commerce and labor in the Roosevelt cabinet, came to Marion to discuss with Senator Harding both the financial situation and the complications now imminent in Europe. Mr. Straus has been regarded as a possible ambassador to Germany.
